

The Bridge of Hearts

Hikayala.com Team

In a small, beautiful American town surrounded by a wide river, lived a smart and beloved ten-year-old boy named Ethan.

Ethan wore a comfortable cotton sports shirt and practical jeans, known for his deep enthusiasm to help his neighbors.

One day, the wooden parts of the small bridges were damaged by a storm, isolating children from their schools and making everyone feel lonely.

Ethan stood contemplating the wide gap with sadness, deciding to build a new bridge connecting hearts before places.

He let out an enthusiastic shout, running fast to gather tools.

Ethan collided with a sloped wooden post and fell into a cart of pillows, disappearing amidst flying dust and pillows like floating cotton!

Ethan stood up with a wide smile and began organizing the efforts.

Everyone cooperated with amazing efficiency; one tied ropes, another secured planks, and Ethan supervised the work with a cheerful and organized spirit.

Suddenly, the construction of the beautiful wooden bridge was completed.

Joy and celebrations
spread across the town,

Everyone learned that community connection create miracles.
